MARTIRED POLICEMAN BRENNAN SADLY LAID AT REST.

Inspector Steers, Capt. Ryan and the Force of the Thirty-Fifth Street Station Form an Recort on the Way to St. Gabriel's-Touching Tributes to the Dead Man and untions for the Widow.

The murdered policeman, James Brennar who was shot by Henry Carlton, alias "Handsome Harry," was buried this morn-at 10 o'clock from St. Gabriel's Church, 310 East Thirty-seventh street.

In the modest little room of which he was once the joy and life the policeman who had closed a white record by death in the discharge of his duty lay calmly sleeping in his coffin. The wounds made by two of the three bullets which Cariton sent hissing into his head were concealed by neat pieces of white court-plaster.

The windows and walls were hung with the able trappings of woe and a crucifix stood the head of the coffin. Long wax tapers shed their light on the pale face of the dead shed their light on the pale face of the dead man and the almost equally pallid features of his heart-broken widow, who sat nestling moonsciously against the coffin. In her srms was baby Julia, a tiny creature, whose bright, healthy face and white embroidered robe formed a striking contrast to her mother and her iather, the dead hero.

Several beautiful floral tributes from the first and second platoons of the Thirty-fifth arcet station stood around the bier. One large shield bore, in purple immertelles, the first shield bore, in purple immertelles, the seription: "An unfinished tour of duty, lat." This was the number of Brennan's shield. Supt. Murray and Inspectors Steers and Conlin arrived at the house just before the body was brought down. As soon as the men had filed down from the little room where they had taken a last look at their dead comrade. Inspector Steers assumed com! mand, and in ranks of four abreast the policemen walked in front of the hearse and five carriages to St. Gabriel's Church.

The policemen drew up in a me on each side of the street and presented arms with the locusts as the hearse drove by.

The coffin was placed on the black catasique in front of the altar, around which were six tail candles, and Mgr. Farley, the pastor of St. Gabriel's Church and celebrant of the solemn requiem mass for the repose of Officer Brennan's soul, assisted by Father James Kenney, deacon; Father McKenna, subdacon, and Father Cutler, the Master of Ceremomes, filed into the sanctuary, preceded by ten surpliced altar boys, while Organizations.

Coroner Levy holds the inquest on the dead man. Commissioner Tom Brennan and Commissioner Porter went to the police station this morning and presented to Capt. Ryan the $100 donated by Mr. Lemuel Pomeboy, of the New York Club, to the widow of James Brennan. Other contributions have been received, and in their hour of grief these substantial tokens of regard for Brennan's worth are a great solace to his stricken family.

THE POLITICAL POT.

But Commissioner Voorbees Thinks He Can Wholesale Churges by Politicians of Both The marvellous excess of registration in 200 As the day which is to seal the fate of Presidential aspirants approaches the public is out of the 856 election districts, which was given a better muight into the true status of first mentioned exclusively in The Evening WORLD, still is the absorbing topic of discus-

The National Committees, both Democratic sion at Police Headquarters and will be the and Republican, are in possession of facts regarding the outcome of the campaign which Commissioner Voorhis has made frequent tests to see how rapidly expert poll clerks can check off voters and the inspectors de-posit ballots, and has demonstrated that— barring unnecessary interruptions and vexa-tious delays—two votes can be received a have hitherto been jealously guarded as secrets too precious to be divulged.

But the day of fate is fast upon them and he action of the rival managers reveals the true inwardness of affairs.

"It is well known," says a prominent Democratic politician, "that Chairman Quay, of the Republican Committee, has pinned his faith on victory on the carrying of New York State, and has resorted to all the means, questionable and unquestionably fraudulent which have been used for years to maintain Republican supremacy in Pennsyl-

"Money has been and is to be used without stint. Republican colonists have been imported into this city and into the southern tier of counties, and all the tricks to prevent Democrats from voting have not yet been, but undoubtedly will be, sprung during the when 4 o'clock comes will be considered as constructively present in the polling place, and their votes will be accepted.

Recorder Smyth repudiated the theory that a voter can be prevented from casting his ballot simply because of the large number registered, and went directly counter to Mr. O'Brien's statement that those waiting at the polls must be shut down on promptly at 4 o'clock.

Commissioner Voorbis has prepared a reserved of the statement of the state but undoubtedly will be, sprung during the week.

"Despite all this it has become evident to Quay. Fassett and the rest of the heelers at Republican National Headquar'ers that Cleveland is going to carry this State by a good round majority and they are becoming desperate in their despair.

"The strongest evidence of their weakness is found in the howl which they are now raising that the Democratic National Committee is engaged in a plot to steal the electoral vote of the State by bribing whole boards of election inspectors in this city and on Long Island, and to fix up a majority for Cleveland which will overcome that the Republicans of the interior will bring to Hariem River.

Harlem River.

"That such a charge is the veriest rot is evident to every thinking man. Every one knows that the vote south of the Harlem is canvassed and is known in the State at large long before it is possible to know how one-third of the interior counties have cast their vote.

"The polls close in this city long before they do in the country districts. The number of bellots to canvass in each election precinct are much less than in the rural districts, and the returns are in from one to twelve hours earlier in the city. It will thus be seen that the city returns cannot be fixed to overcome the rural majority, even should there be a desire to do so.

This wail of the Republican campaign management is made simply to prepare the faithful for a defeat which cannot be averted and which they propose as usual to charge to fraudulent practices on the part of the Democracy.

The non-expert poll clerks will be transferred to precincts where the vote is within the prescribed limit of 400. The resolution further will appeal to voters to appear at the polls early and to remain there until their ballots are cast. The Commissioners hope to provide such other means—such as a strong police escort to prevent partisan heelers from wantonly interfering with the vote by useless challenges or other time-killing methods.

The reports of the Captains to the Superintendent on registration frauds show that colonization has been indulged in largely and that it has received a deathblow. The facts show that large numbers of colonizers hall from Pennsylvania and the South, and are principally colored men and typical roughs. Hundreds of them have returned home, fearing an arrest and imprisonment. The realization that all his fine-laid plans of them have returned home, fearing an arrest and imprisonment.

Capt. Thompson, of the Eighth, has secured warrants for the arrest of forty colonizers, who, he says, have registered for the sole purpose of selling their votes to the highest bidder.

Capt. Garland, of the Seventh, reports that his precinct has more tramps to the square inch than ever before in the history of the precinct. They swarm in lodging-houses, tenements and vacant buildings, and, to use the Captain's graphic language, "defy the ingenuity of honest men to teil whence they came." The realization that all his fine-hald plans to capture New York have miscarried has soured the temper of Chairman Quay. He is sick, petulant and ill-humored.

A committee of the Republican Business Men's Association discovered this when they interviewed him on the subject of a review of their parade next Saturday afternoon by Gen. Harrison.

Harrison.

The Republican candidate had consented to be present if Muzzler Quay would permit him.

The Muzzler would not and grew very angry, saying to the Committee who waited bets on Harrison, is reported to have boasted in Philadelphia yesterday: "We have the Democrats in New York just where we want them. They cannot poll a full vote in that city between 6 and 4 o'clock, and we mean to prevent as much voting as possible by retarding voters, challenging, fights, &c. We can afford to have a few of our men arrested, more will take their places, and all the money we need to pay them if they are sent to Sing Sing for a year or so is in our hands. We are going to win at all odds."

on him:

"I never thought a man could be so crosseyed. No, Gen. Harrison shall not leave Indianapolis. The success of the campaign shall not be imperilled by his presence. He shall stay at home."

So the little grandson of a great grandfather is not permitted to review his admirers in procession, and Candidate Morton will hold his place in the reviewing stand.

Everything indicates the greatest confidence of success at Democratic National Headquarters. Chairmen Barnum and Brice are as serene as ever, and with masterly hands continue the direction of the campaign on the old lines.

All of their information indicates a Democratic majority in the State of fully 20,000, and all they are concerned in is the frustration of the Republican frauds intended to reduce or overcome it, and they are hitting them telling blows in the head wherever they bob up.

Charges of trading on the part of the bob up.

Charges of trading on the part of the Democratic organizations of this city, circulated by Repúblicans, have been completely set at rest by Commissioner Croker, who has warned the Tammany Hall Committee on Organization that its members will be held strictly responsible for Tammany's guarantee of a plurality of 60,000 to 65,000 in the city for Cleveland and Thurman.

"If the Democratic National ticket is traded after this," said a prominent Tammany Hall man this morning. "good Democrats can hold others than Tammany men and friends of Sheriff Grant responsible." forty of the 250 warrants for colonizers in the Second Assembly District applied for by Capt McCullagh yesterday.

Detective Crystal says that a number of disfranchised ex-convicts have registered from various places in the district. Owing to the inability of the Election Inspectors to identify them, the officers are waiting to catch them voting or attempting to vote on Election Day, when they will be expected.

OFF-SETTING A POLITICAL PLOT. Story of President Cleveland's Efforts to Save an Irish-American.

INPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. I PROVIDENCE, R. L., Oct. 30,—Chairman Carroll, of the Democratic State Committee, made a stateof the Democratic State Committee, made a statement to-day which completely knocks on the head a plot hatched by the Republicans to embroil President Cleveland with the Irish by stating that he allowed John Curtin Kent, an Irish-American citizes, to languish in an English prison without helo from the United States Government.

Chairman Carroll shows letters which prove that Kent, when on trul for a Fenian outrage, concealed the fact that he was a citizen of this country, and that when President Cleveland became aware of this he stirred up the State Department, and strong representations are now being made by Coosal Waller to the British Government.

Kent declared his intention July 25, 1876, and was naturalized in the Superior Court, New York, Get. 18, 1880.

SOMEBODY'S FINGERS BURNED. True Story of the Lively Row in the Eighth

An EVENING WORLD young man, who has received a good Sunday-school education, was sent out this morning to learn the truth about the terrible onslaught which a band of tough Republicans, headed by Silver Dollar

Charles Smith, was alleged to have made upon a band of peaceful Democrats who were holding forth from a truck on the corner of Eldridge and Canal streets last night. He cannot conscientiously credit the tales as told by either party. It is true that the Democrats of the Eighth Assembly District were preaching tariff reform from a truck at the point stated, and form from a truck at the point stated, and among the speakers was Judge John Henry McCarthy, candidate for Congress.

According to the Democratic story, he was just concluding his speech when the John J. O'Brien Legion, about 1,000 in number, came marching through Eldridge street, with drums beating and banners flying.

The sight of the quiet, peaceable Democrats on the truck, educating the masses in politics, was like a red rag to a wild bull.

"He who loves me follows me," or words to that effect, are said to have been uttered by Mr. Smith as he rushed for the truck with a long stiletto in his hand.

For some reason or other he is not accused of stabbing any one. Probably because he didn't.

It is directly charged though that he at didn't.

It is directly charged, though, that he at-

It is directly charged, though, that he attempted to burn a transparency bearing a fikeness of the President's face. His diabolical scheme did not succeed.

The Democrate talked back and walked back until a pistol shot was heard. Then they started to run back and crowded into G. Hoepfner's saloon, on the corner.

Mr. Hoepfner is a Democrat, and was formerly in partnership with Smith; but they never speak as they pass by now. This is because Mr. Smith is a Republican, and the candidate for Assembly in the Eighth, say Mr. Hoepfner's friends, while the Smith partisans declare that Hoepfner owes him money.

say Mr. Hoepfner's friends, while the Smith partisans declare that Hoepfner owes him money.

Now the Republican tale is briefly this, as narrated by Mr. Smith and several of his faithful henchmen this morning:

The John J. O'Brien Association had an invitation to a Republican pow-wow at Eldridge and Canal streets last night. When they got there it was raining.

They found a truck arranged as a speakers' stand and thought it was for them, as no one else was about. They took possession of it until they found that it had been used by the Democrats. Then they deserted it. There were not a hundred of them altogether.

"How about the pistol shots and the knife?" asked the reporter.

"There were no pistol shots, and I never carried a stiletto or a knife im my life," said Mr. Smith.

At the Eldridge street police station Ward Detective George Connor said: "Some kid exploded a few giant torpedoes, That is all the pistol shooting there was. The trouble did not amount to anything."

At Hoepfner's salcon, when the reporter innocently asked if the police theory of torpedoes not be true, a youthful Democrat nearly broke his face in an effort to sneer, and replied:

"Torpedoes! Hub, huh! Why, de buland replied;

"Torpedoes! Hub, huh! Why, de bullits ripped up de pavin' stones in de street.
Dey wuz de biggist kin' uv lead bullets, and a few uv 'ein' ud do fer grape shot."
Mr. Hoepfner admitted that the Democrats had descried the truck and entered his saloon to escape the rain before the O'Brien proces-sion appeared or the scene.

The truthful reporter could not decide what to accept from the stories told by the interested parties and there were no disin-interested parties, and there were no disin-terested ones in that vicinity.

At Essex Market this morning warrants were issued for Smith and for Tom Sullivan, a barkeeper at Barney Rourke's. They were charged with assaulting Charles Dandelion, who was Chairman of the Democratic mest-ing.

Smith gave himself up when he heard of the warrant and was held for examination.

HERE'S A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Was Levi P. Morton Engaged in Blockade Running During the Late War ? A Washington despatch to this morning's papers announced that the Democratic Cam

Canada, leaving creditors to realize on upward of $50,000 worth of forged commercial paper, which he is alleged to have negotiated. Albers's parents started him in business a few years ago with $15,000. Previous that he had been bookkeeper in the Fank of Buffalo. Albers was a wild speculator, and lately has been operating without much capital. He was engaged to marry the daughter of Jacob Scheu, the rich old maltster, and obtained Scheu's aid in some financial matters. Finally he signed Scheu's name to $8,000 worth of paper, which the expectant father-in-law made good. Albers then began the wholesale use of Scheu's name on paper used in his lumber and coal business and the amount is above fifty thousand dollars.

Last week he tried to get $20,000 on Mr. Scheu's name at the German Bank, but the cashier sent to verify the signature and found it a forgery.

OUR CHAMPIONS AT HOME

THEIR BANNER FLUNG TO A NEW YORK BREEZE TO-DAY.

The Glants, With Their Work Well Done, Will Now Rest for the Winter-Story of the Return Trip from St. Louis-Pit Abe Did Talk About the Umnire

The New York Baseball Club reache own early this morning. after a thirty-six hour ride from St. Louis.

The party made the journey in a special sleeping-car which Manager Mutric had decorated with flags, streamers and bunting galore.

On the journey to St. Louis the Giants' car bore the legend : "New York Giants, Champions of the League."

During the trip home the legend read; New York Giants, Champions of the World." How that change of signs came about the eaders of The Evening World already know. The Giants won six out of the first eight games played and settled the question of their superiority then and there.

of their superiority then and there.

The remainder of the games, though rather farcical, were well enough played by the Giants to allow them to maintain their lead in every department of the game. When the final game was over—an exhibition one, which netted the boys a trifle over *25 each—and the team, the management and their guests had boarded the car which was to beat them to New York, the party was in the best of spirits, for, as Connor cheerily remarked:

"It's home again, and no more games."

The journey was marked by no unusually stirring incidents. Time was passed in cardplaying, reading, sleeping, singing, and in answering Jim Mutrie's oft-repeated and loudly interrogative monosyllable. "Who?" with a howled chorus of "We are the people."

with a howled chorus of "We are the people."

At the different stations the boys laughed at and guyed the wayside rustics, who, with mouths and eyes wide opened, first scanned the sign hung along the car and then eagerly stared at the occupants within. There was some little voluntary cheering along the line, but no organized demonstration.

When the train reached Pittsburg and the party disembarked for supper, the different members were immediately pounced upon by newspaper correspondents, who wanted to see, first Chris Von der Ahe, next Umpire Gaffney, and in the absence of both of these, any one who would listen to them. The cause of the disturbance was the sit, Louis President's denial of the interview credited to him in Pittsburg, in which he was reported as making remarks reflecting upon the characters of both Umpires Kelly and Gaffney. The interview was sent out by the Associated Press on the night on which the St. Louis and New York Clubs passed through Pittsburg en route for St. Louis, upon arriving in the last-named place Kelly and Gaffney refused to go on with the series unless Von der Ahe apologized. President Day sided with the umpires, and a meeting between the parties concerned followed. Von der Ahe then denied saying anything of the kind and claimed that he did not even see a reportor in Pittsburg.

It was then partially agreed between the the kind and claimed that he did not even see a reporter in Pittsburg.

It was then partially agreed between the two presidents and the umpires that the man who was responsible for the interviews should be prosecuted.

Last night four Pittsburg reporters stated in the presence of nearly all the Giants' party, that Von der Ahe had made the statements credited to him, and the four all said they were present when he made it.

they were present when he made it.

This rather puts Chris in the hole, and whether or not the affair goes to the courts, one thing is certain—that Gaffney will not be member of the Association staff another ve The boys, for the most part, retired shortly after leaving Pittsburg, and awoke only just before the train pulled into the Jersey City

Arlie Latham, of the Browns, accompanied the Giants as far as Pittsburg, where he joined the theatrical company of which he is now a member.

Pitcher George left the party at Columbus to go to his home in Bellair. The rest of the boys, excepting those who left the party at St. Louis, came all the way home, and will probably remain in town for a week or so. An exhibition game is likely to be played at the Polo Grounds on Saturday and another at Ridgewood on Sunday.

President Von der Ahe presented Manager Mutrie with the World's Championship flag on the night before their departure from St. Louis.

To-day the world's championship flag was flung to the breeze from President Day's office, at 121 Maiden Laue, while the other trophies of the victorious Giants were displayed in the office window. Many people admired the flag and the other exhibits.

Actress Blauche Maraden to-day abandoned contest over her inther's will. The case was fore Referee Porter V. Ransom, and when the in support of the dead author's bequests wa-clusted hiss Marsden's lawyer said a lack of compelled her to give up the contest.
